Why Co-Produce With Madrid?

Co-productions allow to establish synergies and share creative, technical and financial resources to develop a project. By the way, they foster collaboration, exchange of knowledge and the development of cultural bounds between different countries.

Qualifying as an official Spanish co-production means eligibility to apply for the same funds as a completely Spanish production.

A co-production is considered Spanish if the production agreement between the Spanish company and one or more companies of other countries is made under one of the official co-production treaties (bilateral or multilateral agreements) or according to the rules of Spanish Cinema Law (Real Decreto 1084/2015, December 4).

General requirements to coproduce with Spain:

- Request approval to coproduce before starting the film shoot.
- Be considered national in each of the countries.
- Creative, technical team and companies of the nationality of the co-producers.
- Percentage of participation of each country:
- Two countries: 20% - 80%
- More than two countries: 10% - 70%

How to enter Spain to work in a production

The procedures vary depending on the length of stay in Spain, whether you are a self-employed worker or an employed person, and in this case, whether you work for a Spanish company or a foreign company.

There are three possible routes of entry and permanence for foreign professionals who carry out an activity in the audiovisual sector:

- A first route is established for professionals in the audiovisual sector who are going to stay in Spain for up to 90 days in any 180 days period, who will be exempt from the obligation to obtain a work authorization and a visa if they come from those visa-exempt countries according to community regulations.
- The second route is intended for those professionals in the audiovisual sector who are going to stay in Spain for more than 90 days, up to a maximum of 180 days. In these cases, foreigners will be able to obtain a visa that will be sufficient to remain and exercise their activity in Spain during its validity. In addition, it is foreseen that those foreigners who initially had come to Spain for a period of 90 days of stay in any period of 180 days may, exceptionally, request a stay authorization for the audiovisual sector for a maximum period of 180 days.
- Finally for the third way; A residence permit is developed, configured as a single permit for foreigners who are going to reside and work in the audiovisual sector for more than 180 days

For these three routes of entry and permanence, the possibility is enabled for artists or professionals to remain in Spain with their direct relatives.
